Artist Statement

My practice explores the tension between repulsion and attraction through the digital grotesque, a fusion of unsettling bodily forms and intense, vibrating digital aesthetics.

In response to the dematerialization of experience in the digital age, I translate emotional and digital processes back into tactile bodies where fear gains weight, texture, and pulsation.

I view corporeality not as an image of vulnerability, but as a pulsating system in which fear triggers flow that is dynamic, generative, and alive.

Working at the intersection of manual sculpture and immersive digital technologies, I create hybrid installations where the ephemeral becomes tangible and the virtual becomes physically felt.

Through the aestheticization of the grotesque, I propose to reframe fear not as weakness, but as a source of curiosity and driving force.

My installations become spaces where anxiety and discomfort cease to be dead ends and become the beginning of exploration.
